

An Undergraduate
Summer Research
Program in Science and Biotechnology

DISCOVER
POTENTIAL

Every year, the Amgen Scholars Program provides hundreds of selected undergraduates with the opportunity to engage in a hands-on research experience at many of the world's premier educational institutions. Currently, thirteen institutions in the U.S., five in Europe, four in Asia and one each in Australia and Canada host the summer research program. The Amgen Foundation has committed $74 million over sixteen years to this global initiative to make the opportunity possible for thousands of students.

Inspiring the Scientists of Tomorrow

As Amgen Scholars, students will have the opportunity to:

- Take part in important institution research projects, gain hands-on lab experience and contribute to the advancement of science;
- Interact with and receive guidance from faculty mentors, including some of the world's top academic scientists; and
- Participate in engaging scientific seminars, workshops and networking events.

The Amgen Scholars Regional Symposia

A signature component of the summer program is a symposium where students hear firsthand from leading scientists working in industry and academia. Amgen Scholars from the U.S. and Canada meet in California, Scholars from Europe convene in England, those across Asia gather in Singapore, and Scholars from the Australia region convene in Melbourne. Each symposium provides undergraduates with valuable opportunities to discuss their research, learn about drug discovery and development, and network with other Amgen Scholars from their respective region.

Financial Support

Financial support is a critical component of the Amgen Scholars Program. Please note that details vary by host institution. See each institution's summer research program website for more information.

Eligibility

- To participate at a host institution in the United States, qualifying students must already be enrolled in four-year accredited colleges or universities in the U.S., Puerto Rico or other U.S. territories.
- To participate at a host institution in Europe, qualifying students must already be enrolled in colleges or universities in Europe.
- To participate at a host institution in Asia, which is open to students worldwide, qualifying students must be enrolled in colleges or universities that award a bachelor's degree (or its equivalent).
- Visit amgenscholars.com for more details, as well as to learn about eligibility for the Australia and Canada programs.

Each host institution has its own application process. With the exception of Australia, the application deadline for most institutions is in early February.

Amgen Scholars is an international program funded by the Amgen Foundation with direction and technical assistance provided by Harvard University. The Amgen Foundation seeks to advance excellence in science education to inspire the next generation of innovators, and invest in strengthening communities where Amgen staff members live and work. To date, the Foundation has donated over $300 million to local, regional, and international nonprofit organizations that impact society in inspiring and innovative ways. The Amgen Foundation brings the excitement of discovery to the scientists of tomorrow through several signature programs, including Amgen Scholars, Amgen Biotech Experience, and LabXchange.
